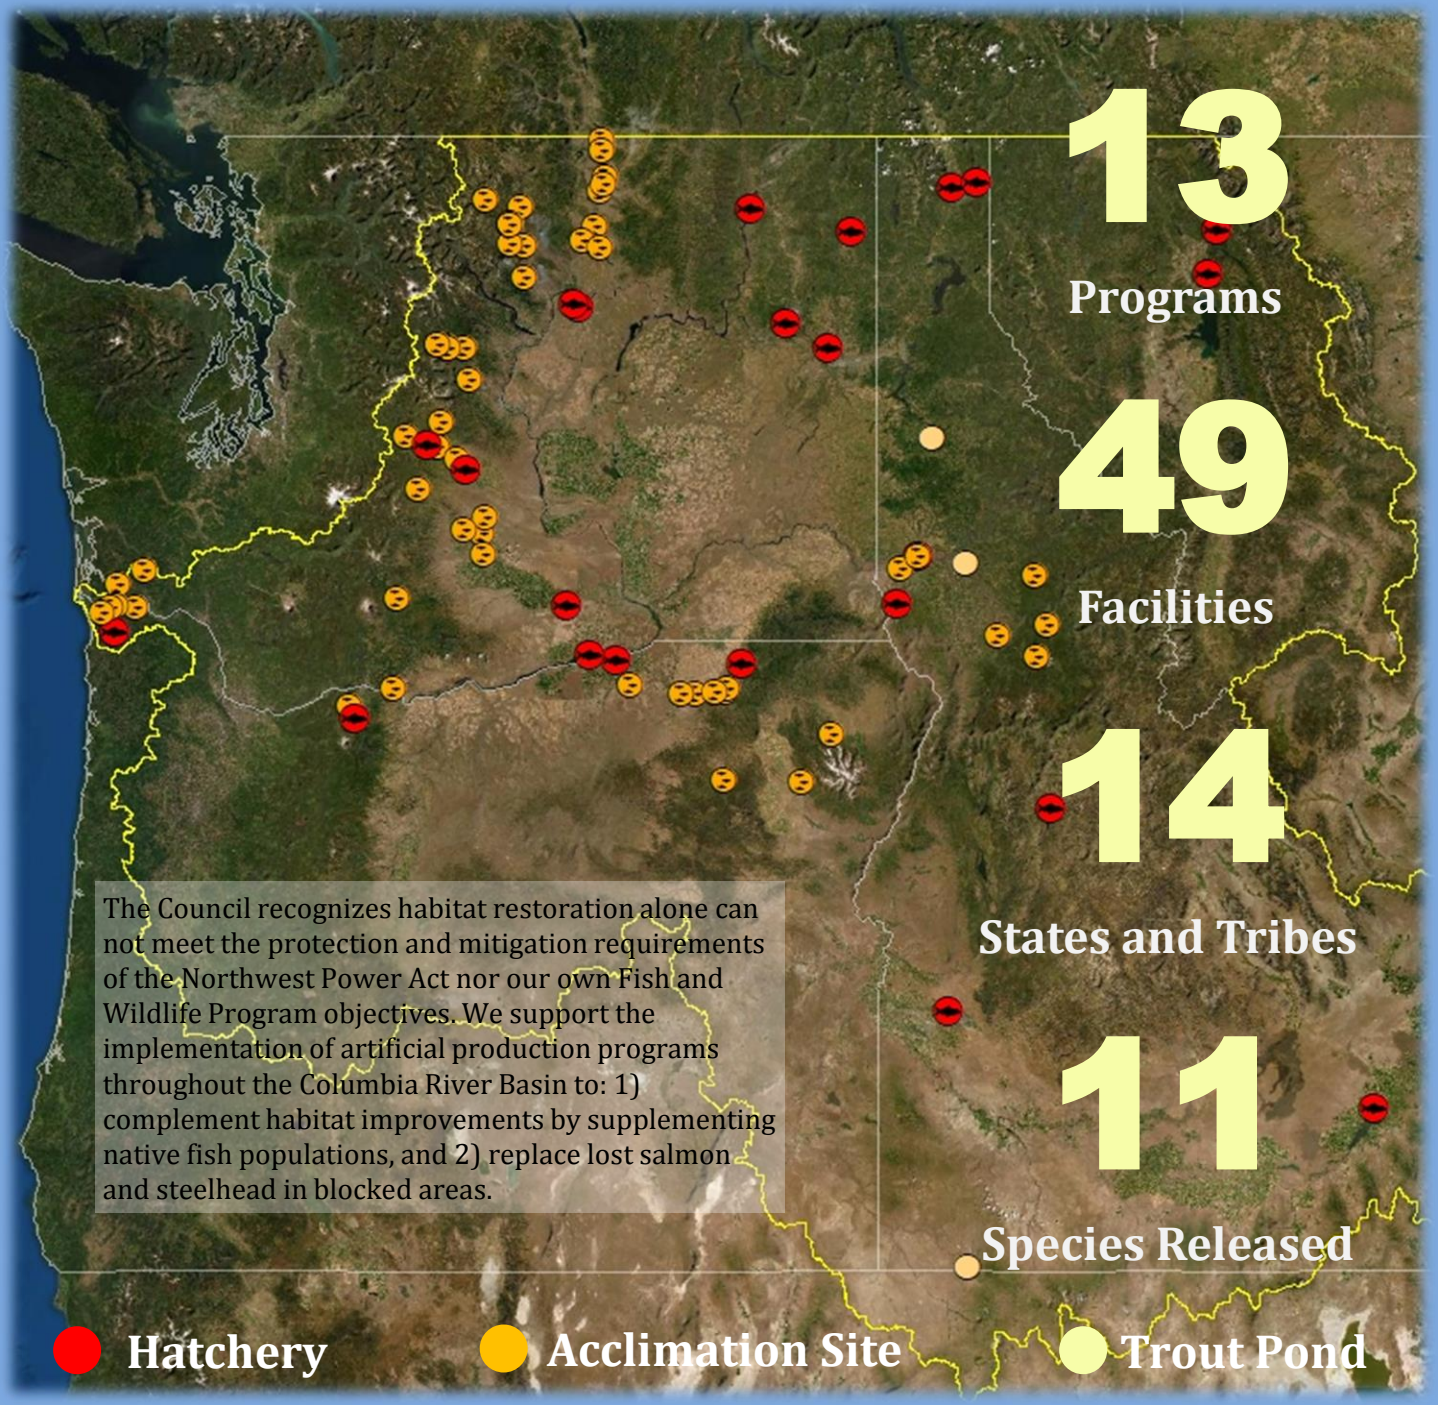
Northwest Power and Conservation Council

Artificial Production Facilities of the Fish and Wildlife Program



www.nwcouncil.org/

HOOD RIVER PRODUCTION PROGRAM

Operated by the Confederated Tribes Warms Springs Reservation and Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife

Initiated as a mitigation measure for the effects caused by the construction and operation of the hydrosystem, the program relies on the Parkdale Hatchery and Moving Falls facility to provide fish for the restoration and recovery of Hood River winter steelhead and spring Chinook populations while also providing tribal and recreational fisheries. The program also uses ODFW's Pelton and Oak Springs facilities for the rearing of fish.